CATALOGUE FOR SEASON 1958

205-11(12-3)1

The British Mount Everest Expedition 1953

SINCE 1921 we have supplied equipment to every Mount Everest Expedition, and again Benjamin Edgingtons were commissioned to manufacture the Tents, Sleeping Bags, Rucksacks, etc., etc. used on the successful 1953 expedition.

We were privileged to work in co-operation with the R.A. Experimental Establishment, and for the tents a special light weight cloth "Wyncol" was evolved, which was found at a wind velocity of 100 miles per hour to have a Penetration of NIL, also the Water Penetration of this remarkable material was found to be NIL.

To ensure that only the finest possible equipment was supplied, the entire resources of our Factories were concentrated upon the numerous types of tents, etc., which were supplied for Camps at Base H.Q., Advance Bases, the South Col, and for the Final Assault, the tent for the latter, being a 2-man Special Meade, coloured pink and weighing 10 lbs. including a Nylon Inner Lining.

The Sleeping Bags were generously filled with Super Quality Down and made to incorporate the very latest ideas of heat insulation, which have been developed from experience gained during the war years.

The High Altitude Rucksacks were of a revolutionary pattern enabling very heavy loads to be carried with the minimum of effort.

The Oxygen Cylinders were contained in specially designed light Duralumin frames, to which were attached Rucksacks of a most ingenious design, made from similar material to that used for the tents.

The Clothing consisted of Down Filled Quilted Jackets and Trousers, which although extremely light in weight, were found to have remarkable heat retaining properties.

The extent of our very considerable experience in the manufacture of every conceivable type of equipment, both for Expeditionary and normal use, is reflected in the articles offered in this Catalogue.

PERMANENT SITE TENTS

These Tents have been especially designed for the discriminating Camper, and they are constructed on the same fundamental principle and made with the same exacting care as the heavier weight types supplied by us for use on Survey and Permanent Camps abroad. The material selected is an improved 10 oz. Willesden Green Proofed Canvas, treated with a light protective film, adding substantially to its waterproofness, or in 10 oz. Unbleached White Cotton Duck. Tents have ventilators in the roof, and doors at both ends, and are supplied with 2 section upright and 3 section ridge poles, necessary lines, pegs and mallet, each packed in a valise.

FLYSHEETS can be supplied and are made in the same material as the Tents. We strongly recommend the use of a flysheet, as it affords added protection and warmth during inclement weather, and helps to keep the Tent cool in hot weather. The sheets are made to well protect the walls, and come down to about 2 ft. from the ground.

As an alternative the flysheet can be made with a Verandah, which in effect, is an extension to the length of the flysheet. An extra upright and ridge pole are then required.

Heavy Duty Canvas Groundsheets are made to cover the whole floor space.
